All Saints Church

A very warm welcome to you to All Saints Turvey as you come to share in our Midsummer Festival – we are delighted that you are here and hope you enjoy your visit.

There has been a church on this site for well over a thousand years – evidence can be seen in the wonderful architecture that surrounds you. If you are interested in finding out more about the building there is an excellent leaflet at the back of church – or you may like to take advantage of one of our 'Festival Specials' and see our Emeritus Churchwarden, Len Savage, build up the church with the aid of a three dimensional model.

What makes this church really special, however, is the sense of history and community within its walls, – the sense of countless generations making their way here for prayer and worship, rejoicing at family births and marriages and grieving over lost friends and relatives. The community would also have come here to celebrate great village events as well as the major church festivals - it is no coincidence that the church is in the middle of the village.

The real work of All Saints is little changed by the centuries, that is why it is such a joy to see the enthusiasm with which local groups and organisations are joining together in this celebration of life in Turvey through the ages. Turvey is a remarkable place to live – we hope that you will get some sense of the strength of our community in all its variety as you enjoy this festival with us.

Jo Spray
Priest in Charge.

The porch arrangement to the right of the door, the altar flowers and the pillars have been done by three of our usual flower arrangers – Pam Cowley, Celia Hanbury and Anne Claypole White

We hope you have enjoyed your visit to All Saints, Turvey, and particularly our first Flower Festival for many years.

What you have seen represents our village - some arrangements have been staged by experienced flower arrangers, others by groups or individuals with little experience. Organisations like the Rec. Committee, who are not represented by a display, have given practical help. We have all had great fun working and planning together.

Many people have worked hard – in particular we thank:

Liz Fincham
